B. ASSESSMENT

ORIGIN. Born in Kandahar. Came out of the Afghan conflict zones in 2016: left Kabul in June of that year; entered Syria two days later, and flew into Baghdad in August 2017. The name was given to him in the field. TSAR is the Tsar Bomba, the largest bomb ever detonated, and it was given for what he left behind.

SKILLS. Improvised weapons manufacture and long-range marksmanship, both learned in the regional wars. Guerrilla warfare. Urban combat. Chemical weapons manufacture. Counter-surveillance. Interrogation. He trains our people on the rifle himself.

CYBER. He has been inside government networks on three continents. The Americans list one Department of Defense server and one State Department database among the systems he reached. They have not broken his encryption.

BELIEF. He keeps a corrupted form of the old Zoroastrian rites and names himself an incarnation of the daevas, the demons of that faith. He claims descent from Aeshma, the daeva of wrath. The pink and black shemagh is worn on every operation. The services read it as psychological warfare. It is also a uniform: the people who see it know what it means before he has done anything.

METHODS. Encrypted networks, safe houses in the cities, forged documents. Vehicle bombs. Assassination of officials. Recruitment of the vulnerable through online radicalization.

MONEY. He runs cryptocurrency laundering for the organization and holds the hawala relationships in Dubai, Istanbul and Damascus. Revenue comes from arms sales across borders, trafficking of people and drugs through partners, extortion and kidnapping.

NETWORK. Smuggling routes across several borders and a foreign-fighter pipeline. Arms dealers in the conflict zones. Officials who sell safe passage.

NECROSOCIETY ALIGNMENT. The first to join. He brought in the core members through encrypted channels and built the first militant cell with them. Arms traffic and cyber operations run through him.

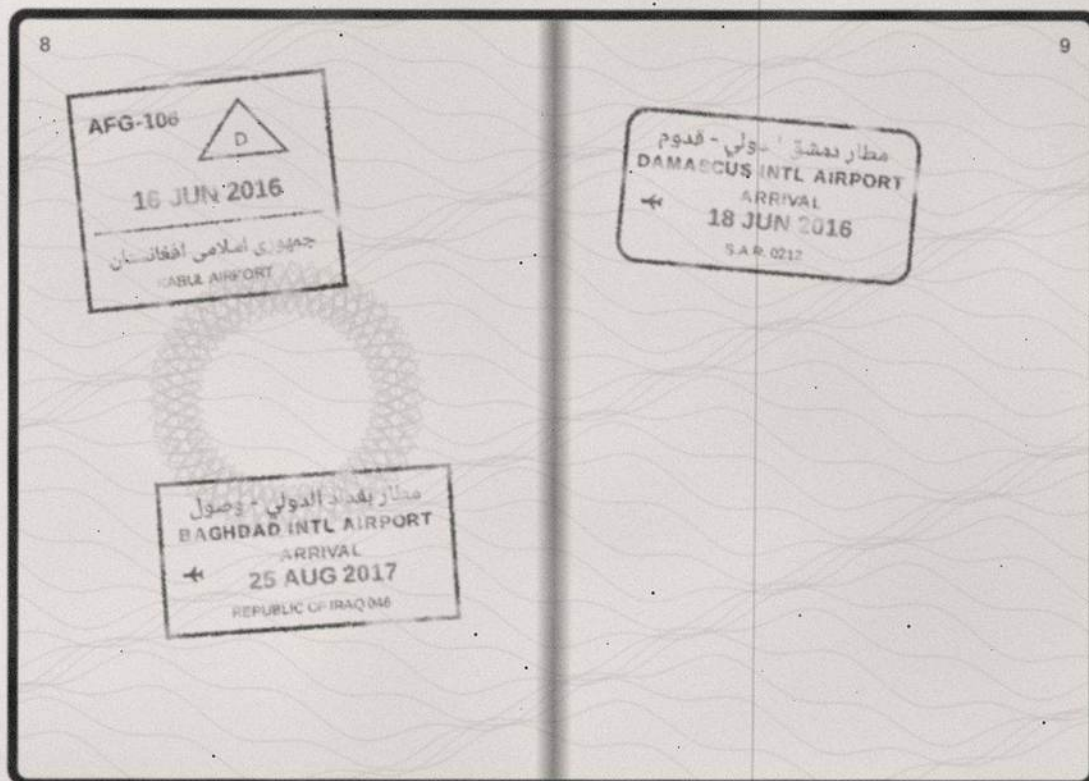

CURRENT THREAT STATUS. At large. Last confirmed in Eastern Europe in December 2024. Rated armed and extremely dangerous. Carries electronic warfare equipment. Their standing order is not to engage him without full tactical support.

HANDLING. He chooses the meeting place. Do not bring a phone into the same building.

Date of entry 12/12/2024

██████████, a physician at a private clinic in Damascus, Syria, was interviewed through a partner service. The interview was conducted in Arabic and translated. ██████████ provided the following information:

On 11/15/2024 a man was brought to the clinic at night by two other men with gunshot wounds to the torso and the left arm. He wore a pink and black shemagh and would not remove it. ██████████ later picked out the same shemagh in a photograph of the subject of this case.

The patient refused morphine and refused any sedation. He stayed awake and watched ██████████'s hands for the whole of the procedure. Three rounds were removed. The patient asked for them and was given them.

A blood sample taken that night was sent to an outside laboratory. ██████████ later learned that the same laboratory had tested a sample from the same patient on 10/03/2024. Both screens found psychoactive compounds the laboratory could not identify. The FBI submitted the reported chemical signature to the DEA, which found no match in its reference collection.

The two men who brought the patient paid in US dollars and left with him the same night, against medical advice. ██████████ has not seen him since.

Investigation on 12/10/2024 at Damascus, Syria (through partner service)

Re: (U) TSARUICIDE - psychological assessment
Requested by: New York, JTTF-3
Date: 12/02/2024

(S//NF) Sources. Two structured interviews conducted by a partner service in Vienna, Austria on 03/30 and 03/31/2022, observed by BAU, and the case file to date.

(S//NF) Structured measures. PCL-R: 36 of 40 (Factor 1 and Factor 2 both elevated). HCR-20 V3: high on historical, clinical and risk-management scales. Narcissistic personality disorder: 8 of 9 criteria met.

(S//NF) Observations. Glib and grandiose. Lies when the lie gains nothing. Showed no response when read victim statements. Explained every act of violence through his religious framework and accepted responsibility for none of them. Affect shallow throughout.

(S//NF) Diagnostic impression.

- F60.2 Antisocial personality disorder, severe
- F60.81 Narcissistic personality disorder
- F15.20 Amphetamine-type substance use disorder, moderate
- Z65.8 Religious or spiritual problem

(S//NF) Risk. Imminent. Violence is instrumental. If detained, recommend indefinite detention under maximum security.
